

Chris Scanlon

Chris Scanlon is the technical lead for Boeing's International Enterprise Military Airworthiness team. The team supports programs that require independent review of design data for airworthiness through externally authority-accredited organizations and internally managed organizations.

Chris has been with The Boeing Company for 19+ years supporting both domestic and international military airworthiness programs.

